

ViEWS - Visual Expression, Writing and Speaking

For students entering in Fall 2005 and thereafter, ViEWS is a university-wide requirement that all departments address oral, written and visual communication learning outcomes in their majors. Virginia Tech is committed to ensuring that every graduate is able to effectively use a variety of spoken, visual and written communication strategies which are necessary for success as a student, for employment, and for life as a responsible citizen.

Each department determines how this requirement will be met by its majors. Individual courses will not be designated “ViEWS”, nor will they appear on the CLE section of the major checksheet. When a student completes a degree in a department, they have met the ViEWS requirement, and that degree should assure competency in oral, written, and visual communication.

The following information identifies the courses within each department that combine to fulfill the ViEWS requirement for majors:
